West Sac joins cemetery district

■ Residents of East Yolo get a slightly-preferred rate to use services at the Davis public cemetery

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Sure, you want to live the rest of your life in West Sacramento. But where do you want to go after that?

West Sacramento doesn't have a cemetery. But options for city residents looking for a final resting place became a little bit more attractive this year when West Sacramento and Clarksburg joined the Davis Cemetery District. The expansion of this special governmental district came after a study by Yolo County's Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCo) and the approval of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors.

A News-Ledger reporter dropped in on the Davis cemetery this week, finding a sunny day replete with wild turkeys and a guinea hen strolling among the headstones. The cemetery is located along Pole Line Road in East Davis.

Joseph Finkleman, community outreach director for the public cemetery, explained that until recently, its district was much smaller.

"It was just Davis, El Macero and a few chunks of dirt contiguous to Davis," said Finkleman. "LAFCo did their every-five-year review of our agency, and in the process of the review, they looked at East Yolo, which had no special (cemetery) district. There will never be a cemetery there because of the (high) water table."

So the county decided to draw Clarksburg and West Sacramento into the map.

While Davis land pay a small amount of property tax to support the cemetery (it amounts to about $2.50 per year per resident, said Finkleman), West Sacramento and Clarksburg residents won't see their property taxes routed the same way. Instead, residents of this new part of the district will see "Tier 2" pricing when they shop for a spot at the cemetery.

Gathered on the grounds of the Davis cemetery: Superintendent Joseph Cattarin, Office Manager Susan Finkleman and Community Outreach Director Joseph Finkleman. The cemetery includes gardens, wildlife and the only natural hill ("swale") in that city, reports Joseph Finkleman.

"They will pay $250 – a one-time fee – regardless of the number of plots they're arranging for," said Finkleman. "Our lowest-end service is a scattering (of ashes) in our cemetery. We have scattering gardens, and we actually place the cremains in as many flower gardens as we can. There's

Work starts on bike/ped trail section reaching near River City High

The City of West Sacramento has started work on a new, dedicated bicycle and pedestrian trail.

The Clarksburg Branch Pedestrian and Bike Trail will be improved between South River Road and an access point at Cherokee Road, south of River City High School in Southport. The project will include installation of pavement over an existing trail, with access trails, sidewalk, curb ramps, signage, striping and related improvements.

The project will be done in 30 to 45 days, depending on weather, reports city spokesman Art Schroeder.

You can see the city's existing and planned bike and pedestrian trail network at the News-Ledger's website, WestSac.com:

Students at Holy Cross Academy school are trying to "can" their principal this holiday season.

They hope to stack Principal Laura MacDonald's office with enough collected canned foods that she can't get to her desk.

Students at the school invite community members to drop off canned food between Dec. 2-13 at the campus, 800 Todhunter Avenue. The collection will then go to the St. Vincent de Paul Food Locker at Holy Cross Parish.

Brewhouse finds a West Sac home?

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The lease wasn't – quite – signed as the News-Ledger went to press yesterday morning. But it appeared that a local beer house operator had found a home for his planned new pub in West Sacramento.

Yolo Brewing Company has probably locked down a spot at 1520 Terminal Street, in an industrial area near the Port of West Sacramento, Harbor Boulevard, and the freeway. That address comes from a legal document filed with Yolo County.

According to the Facebook page for owner "Brewhouse Concepts Land and Management" of Fair

West Sacramento church hosts 'pop-up' medical clinic for a day

A West Sacramento church hosted a "pop-up" clinic for homeless visitors last Wednesday.

New Discovery Church at 4th and F streets hosted the healthcare fair in conjunction with Elica Health Centers.

Clients were offered screening for chronic conditions such as hypertension and diabetes, along with attention from doctors and other medical professionals.

Carol Chamberlain of Elica Health Centers reported that "dozens" of homeless people took advantage of the clinic.

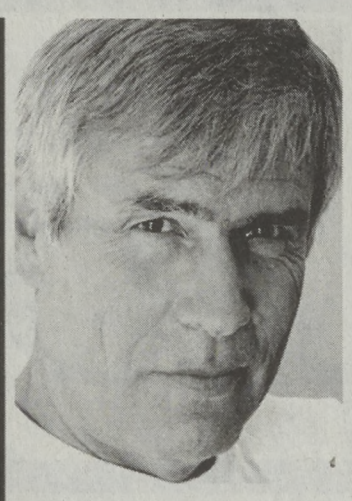
'How will I know whether to kiss her goodnight?'

Going out on a date brought a number of routine terrors.

Sometimes, though, there would come a refreshing new twist on disaster.

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Note: As you may recall, a few weeks ago I wrote a column about a friend of mine who went out on a blind date that didn't go so well, and in writing that column, I was reminded that the horrors of dating never really change. And below is a column I wrote many years ago confirming that fact!

Recently, my daughter and her longtime boyfriend broke up and she has started dating again. The other night, after returning from dinner with a nice young man she had met in one of her college classes, she strolled over to the chesterfield (why did they ever start calling them couches?) where I was reading an interesting book on the subject of why most of our best American writers have been drunks. She plopped down beside me and asked, "Dad, was dating this stressful back in the old days?"

"Well," I said, trying to recall what going out on a date was like back when the dinosaurs still roamed the earth, "if I remember right, it was never as much fun as it was cracked up to be. Why? Didn't you have a good time?"

"Oh, sure, it was super, but it's so nerve-wracking talking to someone for the first time."

"But I thought you said you and Mark talk all the time in class."

"We do, but this was different."

"How so?"

She looked over at me as she often does when she's pretty sure I don't have a clue and said, "Oh, that's okay, Dad, I think I'll go talk to Mom about it. You probably wouldn't understand. It's girl stuff."

As my daughter took off in search of her mother, I sat back in my davenport (in case you don't want to call your couch a chesterfield) and was suddenly flooded with ancient memories of some of the pressures and tensions that went hand-in-hand with dating.

First, there was the terror of actually asking the girl out (and why was it that back in the '60s and '70s, the guy always had to ask the girl out? And why did that all suddenly change about a week or so after I got married?).

Second, back when I was a teenager, a guy had to worry about the answers to some of the following questions:

What if she says no? What if all my friends find out that she said no? Worse yet, what if she says yes? Will Dad let me use the good car? Will he give me some money so I'll be able to put some gas in the good car? Where do I take her if she says yes? Will she want to go to a movie? If she does, will I be able to talk her into going to the drive-in (where it cost $1.50 a carload) or will she insist on going downtown to one of the fancy indoor theaters? What kind of movies does she like? Will I get stuck going to one of those romantic ones? Will she want to go somewhere less boring than a movie? Where will I get the money to take her somewhere less boring than a movie? Will she want to go to dinner? Please, Lord, not dinner! And if I do have to take her to dinner, will she notice that I sometimes make strange noises when I chew, even when my mouth is closed? Will something green or black (it was always one of those two colors) get stuck between my teeth? Will she wait until dessert to inform me that she has an extremely jealous former boyfriend who wants to be a Mafia hit man once he graduates from high school? Will her mother and sisters be looking out the windows when I walk her up to the front door? Should I kiss her goodnight? How will I know if she wants me to kiss her goodnight? If we do get close enough to kiss goodnight, will she notice that I only have one long eyebrow, instead of the two normal ones that most guys have?

Plus there was always the unexpected, like the chilly fall night in 1965 when I was motoring along towards the old Alhambra theater with a young lady I had been trying to get to go out with me for over a year. She was everything I had ever wanted in a girl -- pretty, funny, and liked by everyone. We were both a little nervous and we hadn't said a word to each other for some time when, with absolutely no warning at all, she (although she still tells people it was me), well, she cut the cheese.

With the radio not working (Dad had made me take my own car) and the windows rolled up tight, it sounded like a bomb had gone off. Did the young lady and I even look at each other? Nope. Did we in any way acknowledge what had happened? No way! Did I have the courage to crack the window and let in some fresh air? Absolutely not! Instead, we both just looked straight ahead, tried real hard not to take any deep breaths, and pretended that absolutely nothing had happened.

When it comes to dating, I think Jerry Seinfeld had it right when he said, "What is a date really, but a job interview that lasts all night? And the only difference between the two is that there aren't many job interviews where there's a chance you might end up naked at the end of it."

Sports club burgled:

Thieves take motors, store makes donation

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The River City Rowing Club was hit by burglars two weeks ago.

On Nov. 11, reports club president Bill Naddy, members discovered somebody had taken some equipment stored outside the boathouse at the Port of West Sacramento. The loss included a pair of motors used to drive boats for coaches.

"They took our older two-stroke outboards and three batteries," said Naddy. Since our newer electric-start motors are locked and bolted to the launches, they couldn't get those, and they just cut the battery wires and took the batteries.

The loss was about $2,000, said Naddy. But the blow was softened by help from a Harbor Boulevard auto parts store.

"The local NAPA store donated new batteries to us," said Naddy.

The club has diverted some of its fundraising proceeds to replace the stolen, older motors with newer ones. The club needs a lot of coaches' launches – and motors – because of the numbers of people it puts on the water. River City Rowing Club currently has about 120 members on its high school team (they come from various schools in the region) and about 170 adult members.

At about the same time as the boat club theft, the nearby training facility for the West Sacramento Fire Department also experienced a theft, said Naddy. Taken were some roll-up doors used for firefighter training.

Cities, county look for broadband strategy

Yolo County has hired Magellan Advisors to analyze the local broadband internet infrastructure and "assess future needs and identify strategies to meet those needs," the company reports.

The study is being commissioned by Yolo County's Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCo) in conjunction with the cities of West Sacramento, Davis, Winters and Woodland.

The resulting plan will "provide Yolo County with a roadmap to strengthen broadband inits community through evaluation of wise public investments in infrastructure, broadband-oriented public policy, strategic public-private partnerships, and collaboration with stakeholders, community anchor institutions and service providers," said a statement from Magellan Advisors.

GUEST COMMENTARY:

Tule elk in those hills

TULE ELK
(courtesy of Mary K. Hanson)

By Mary K. Hanson

We are incredibly lucky to be able to see healthy herds of Tule elk (Cervus canadensis ssp. nannodes) in the Berryessa Snow Mountain region these days. This subspecies of elk found only in California had been hunted and poached so extensively that by 1870 they were actually thought to be extinct. Thanks to conservation efforts, including those by California cattle baron Henry Miller in 1873 (who spared and protected a mating pair on his ranch) and the California Department of Fish and Wildlife (who in 1969 protected a herd of 80 head in the Cache Creek area, and in 1978 protected another herd in Lake County) the state population of these handsome and unique elk has grown to over 4000. Their range now extends from the Central Valley to the coast.

The Tule elk are sometimes inaccurately referred to as "dwarf elk" because they are generally smaller in size than other species, like the Rocky also a memorialization included – a very small stone about brick-sized. That's $440, plus the $250 fee (for residents from new areas of the district)."

Please see ELK, p. 4

A traditional single burial with a Titan "fully-sealed" container costs $4,886 for the same customers.

The cemetery also offers other services – including a "green burial" in which the body is encouraged to "return to the earth" in a biodegradable container or shroud ($4,057).

"Green burial is one of the only reasons people with no affinity for this cemetery district would want to be buried here," added Susan Finkleman, the cemetery's office manager. "We are one of the few public cemeteries that will do green burials."

The "public" Davis cemetery will accept clients from outside the district, for a $500 additional fee instead of the $250 fee to be paid by West Sacramento and Clarksburg clients. All fees include an "endowment" charge that go into a fund meant to keep maintaining the cemetery even after it is filled and closed.

"We sit on 28 acres," said Finkleman. "We have almost 20 acres of undeveloped land. At the rate we're utilizing the cemetery, we have enough space for somewhere between 300 and a thousand years."

Finkleman said he believes the prices at the Davis Cemetery are generally lower than those at private facilities (Susan Finkleman reports that 45 percent of its budget is subsidized by property taxes). As a public cemetery, the Davis facility has no funeral home of its own, no above-ground mausoleums and does not allow separate burial of pets – although Fido's ashes can sometimes be included along with his owner's burial if desired.

The facility boasts several flower gardens, a labyrinth, an arboretum, indoor rotating art galley and abundant wildlife.

For more information, visit www.daviscemetery.org, call (530) 756-7807 or email cemetery@dcn.org.

Oaks, the facility plans to open in early 2014, with the opportunity to "craft your own small batch beers onsite or enjoy our freshly crafted draft bers in the tasting room."

Mike Costello, one of the proponents of the project, formerly operated the "Brew It Up!" taphouse and "personal brewery" in downtown Sacramento. He earlier tried to nail down a brewpub location on South River Road in West Sacramento, but negotiations fell through.

The News-Ledger traded emails with Costello yesterday morning, and he said he hoped to sign the new lease yesterday.

A mini-brewpub called Bike Dog Brewing opened earlier this year on Industrial Boulevard in West Sacramento, and Sacramento's Rubicon opened a production-only facility near Ikea also in 2013.

The officer took the man to the motel room and knocked several times, receiving no response from inside. With a key from the motel manager, the officer opened the room door.

"Upon opening the door," reported the officer, "I observed (a 28-year old man) laying on the bed with a glass pipe in his hand and a cloud of smoke around him. Upon closer examination of the pipe, I noticed a white crystal-like substance in the pipe."

The substance later tested positive as 0.12 grams of methamphetamine, and the motel resident went to jail. (The report didn't mention what happened to the Missouri probationer.)

Mountain Elk. The smaller size of most Tule elk is attributed in part to genetics and in part to their diet which consists of a variety of grasses, leaves, reeds and forbs (such as sunflowers and milkweed), and aquatic vegetation when available. Although most male Tule elk (called "bulls") weigh between 450 and 500 pounds, and the females (called "cows") weigh around 350 to 425 pounds, the California Department of Fish and Wildlife records for the elk in the Grizzly Island Wildlife Area at Suisun City weighing in at about 900 pounds. Still, even a 500-pound male is a pretty awesome sight. Standing at up to 5 feet high at the shoulder, adult males can be about 7 feet long and sport a rack of heavy 6-point antlers which by themselves can weigh upwards of 40 pounds!

The antlers, often confused with horns (which are slow-growing permanent structures), are made of solid bone and are shed and regrown every year. In the spring, new antlers are covered with a webwork of blood vessels and tissue known as "velvet" that feeds the bone as it grows (at a rate of about 1 inch per day). The velvet is gone by the summer, and in the winter the antlers themselves are shed. A common myth is that the points on the elk's headgear reflect its age. That's not accurate. Twelve years is an average lifespan for these elk (although some can live as long as a quarter century), but they will still only generate about 6 points on their rack. If you see a "spike bulls", a young elk with unbranched antlers, you know he's less than two years old.

During the breeding season in the fall, mature bull elk "in rut" will use their antlers in part to intimidate younger males, but also as weapons against well-matched bulls to establish dominance when less violent alternatives like vocalization (called "bugling") and posturing fail. As his prize for winning, the dominant male does 80% of the breeding in the herd.

Mated females will have their calves, weighing in at around 20 pounds at birth, a little more than eight months later, usually in May and June. The youngsters are weaned within a few months, just as their spotted coat is replaced by the traditional "Tule-Elk-Tan" coat, and immediately join the herd.

Viewing these creatures can be a lot of fun, but for your own safety and the safety of the elk, follow these basic guidelines:

- View the elk at a distance. Using the telephoto setting on your camera, a scope, or binoculars are ideal.
- Never get between a cow and her calf.
- Never put yourself between a dominant bull and his harem, or any bull and its rival.
- Whisper, watch quietly, and keep your movements slow.

Oh, and if you come across some antlers that have been shed, leave them where they are. Rodents and deer use them as a source of calcium. If you want a souvenir of your find, take a photo of the antlers to share with your friends and family.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Despicable Me 2" (PG) -- Once a dastardly supervillain, the sinister Gru (voiced by Steve Carell) became a doting father in the last movie. With his three adopted daughters (and a crew of goofy yellow minions), Gru must undertake a daunting mission: enter the dating scene. This mission, however, is interrupted by another mission from an Anti-Villain Agent, Lucy (Kristen Wiig) -- Gru and company have to foil a supervillain scheme at a shopping mall.

The plot sounds a little unwieldy, but it barely gets in the way. The real focus of the film is the slapstick humor of the minions and the aggressive cuteness of the kids. It's like a feature-length serving of old-fashioned cartoon humor. Throw in a few lines that will make parents chuckle between rounds of 3-D showboating, and you've got a sequel that competes with its predecessor.

"Fast and Furious 6" (R) -- After toppling a criminal empire in the last film, the street-racing heroes of the "Fast and Furious" franchise (Vin Diesel, Paul Walker, Ludacris, et al.) are spread out around the world, keeping low profiles. They are called back into action once again by Dwayne Johnson's special agent, who offers them amnesty if they can take down a ruthless tribe of motorhead criminals.

This installment piles on the carnage in order to top its five predecessors. The stunts are even more ridiculous and crunchy than ever. There are many scenes of stilted dialogue and contrived problems. Fortunately, the pace of the film puts them into the rearview rather quickly. You'll soon forget the acting as your senses are engulfed in flames and fumes.

"The Hunt" (R) -- In a small community in Denmark, one man's life is turned upside down by suspicion and hysteria. Lucas (Mads Mikkelsen) is a quiet and thoughtful guy who teaches kindergarten during the week and hunts deer in his off time. One little girl tells a lie that snowballs into a witchhunt against an innocent man. As each scene unfolds, you see one man's life turn into a nightmare as he is shunned for accusations he can't possibly disprove. Even in church, his fellow parishioners change pews so they don't sit near him during mass. The detailed directing and delicate performances make this real-life horror story gripping and unforgettable.

"Berberian Sound Studios" (R) -- A British sound technician (Toby Jones) takes a job making cringe-inducing sound effects for Italian horror movies -- a job that burrows into his mind and brings up his personal demons. In the sound booth, he brutalizes radishes and other vegetables to get the perfect crunch and squish that simulates murder. The camera gets up close and intimate with the destruction. The horror is all in your mind, as old-fashioned sound engineering injects terror through your ears. It's an utterly creepy and fun experience.

"Mad's Greatest Artists: Dave Berg Five Decades of the Lighter Side Of ..."
foreword by Drew Friedman
(Running Press, $30)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Without a doubt, for more than 60 years, one of the most irreverent, laugh-out-loud humor publications in America was "Mad" magazine." If you were a kid during the 1950s and '60s, it was one of the publications that your parents scolded you for reading. Two new books illustrate why "Mad" has been such must reading for more than half a century.

"Inside Mad" highlights many of the classic spoofs by such legendary writers and artists as Jack Davis, Drew Friedman, Dick DeBartolo and others. Its 17 celebrity essays include contributions by Roseanne Barr, Whoopi Goldberg and Ken Burns, who reveal what it was like to be lampooned in its page. As a bonus, "Inside Mad" also serves up an all-new, specially commissioned gatefold poster by Sergio Aragones, and a never-before-reprinted Alfred E. Neuman pop art poster.

Some favorite features include "Will Success Spoil Charley Brown," a classic by Jack Rickard and Larry Siegel; the outrageous "Baseball at the Bat"; "A Mad Look At Other Uses for Live Lobsters"; and "Clodumbo," lampooning the TV detective. This is great stuff.

The second book, "Dave Berg," highlights the work of one of Mad's most popular artists. Berg spent 50 years at Mad and was responsible for one of the magazine's most popular features, "The Lighter Side Of ..." In addition to presenting his best work chronologically, there is a rare 1970 interview with the artist.

These two volumes illustrate zany American humor at its wackiest. Anyone who grew up with "Mad" should rejoice. For those who aren't familiar with it, my advice is to grab the books, settle back and be prepared for a delightful shock.

The Kitchen Diva BY Angela Shelf Medearis

New Ideas for Leftover Turkey

Some folks think that the leftovers are one of the best parts of the Thanksgiving holiday. With a little imagination and safe food handling, you can create a new twist on leftover turkey and side dishes.

When you reheat the turkey, stuffing or gravy, make sure it reaches a temperature of at least 165 F. Here are a few creative ideas for using your leftover turkey, dressing and vegetables that are sure to become new holiday traditions!

3-BEAN TURKEY CHILI

Adding the crushed tortilla chips helps to thicken the chili and adds a delicious corn flavor to the dish. It's a great way to use up those broken chips in the bottom of the bag!

2 teaspoons cooking oil
1 medium onion, chopped
1 cup chopped celery
3 cloves garlic, chopped
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 tablespoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 can (28-ounces) diced tomatoes, undrained
1 jar (16-ounces) hot or mild chunky salsa
1/2 to 1 cup turkey gravy (optional)
2 cups cubed cooked turkey
1 (15-ounce) can white beans, drained and rinsed
1 (15-ounce) can black beans, drained and rinsed
1 (15-ounce) can pinto beans, drained and rinsed
1/2 cup finely crushed tortilla chips

1. Heat the oil in a heavy saucepan over medium heat. Add onions, celery, garlic, chili powder, cumin, salt and pepper. Cook until onions are clear. Add the remaining ingredients and stir until well-combined.*

2. Bring to a boil, cover and reduce heat to a simmer for 30 to 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve with shredded Cheddar cheese, sour cream, chopped onions and/or jalapenos or the toppings of your choice. Serves 6.

*Slow-Cooker Option: You can place all of the ingredients into a slower cooker at this point and cook it on low for 4 to 5 hours, if desired.

TURKEY AMERICANA SALAD

Use your leftover turkey, vegetables (left-over Brussel sprouts, roasted vegetables, broccoli, cauliflower or asparagus also work well) and cranberry sauce in this salad, which is a tribute to traditional Thanksgiving flavors.

2 cups shredded leftover turkey meat
2 stalks celery, sliced
1/2 cup celery leaves, coarsely chopped, plus more whole leaves for garnish
1 crisp apple, such as Gala or Macintosh, cored and chopped
1/2 cup cooked whole kernel corn
1/2 cup cooked green beans
1/2 cup pecans, toasted, and coarsely chopped
1/2 cup cranberry sauce
1/2 cup non-fat yogurt
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon salt
1 teapoon ground black pepper
4 cups baby spinach

1. In a large bowl, gently toss the turkey, celery, celery leaves, apple, corn, green beans and pecans until combined. In a small bowl, whisk together the cranberry sauce, yogurt, mayonnaise, and salt and pepper until well-combined. Add the dressing to the turkey mixture and toss gently to evenly dress the ingredients.

2. To serve, spread the baby spinach evenly onto a serving platter, top with the dressed salad, garnish with celery leaves and serve immediately. Serves 4.

TURKEY DAY WRAP

4 (10-inch) flour tortillas
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
4 large slices cooked turkey
1 cup leftover dressing, warmed (optional)
4 slices cooked bacon
4 slices of tomato
1 cups shredded coleslaw or lettuce
1/2 cup chopped purple onion
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Wrap the tortillas in a paper towel. Sprinkle with water on both sides. Warm in microwave for 10 to 15 seconds. Spread each tortilla lightly with mayo. Divide the turkey and dressing, if desired, and put an equal amount on each tortilla. Add a slice of the bacon and tomato, and an equal amount of the coleslaw or lettuce, onions and shredded cheese to each tortilla. Wrap tightly and serve. Serves 4.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF THELMA Stephen Hamilton Runyon aka Stephen H. Runyon aka Steven Runyon CASE NUMBER PB13-200

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Steven Hamilton Runyon aka Stephen H. Runyon aka Stephen Runyon:

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Melody Runyon in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The Petition for Probate requests that Melody Runyon be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Jan. 7, 2014, at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 2, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 725 Court St., Woodland CA 95695.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.
